

Reflections on the Peace Process and a Durable Settlement: A Roundup of Views

<http://jps.ucpress.edu/content/26/1/5>

Abdel Monem Said Aly, Rashid I. Khalidi, Ian S. Lustick, Camille Mansour, Moshe Ma'oz, Anthony Parsons, William B. Quandt, Eric Rouleau, Ghassan Salame, Khalil Shikaki

Abstract

In commemoration of its twenty-fifth anniversary, JPS asked a number of specialists in Middle Eastern affairs to give their thoughts on the future of the peace process and, more particularly, on what they would consider an equitable solution in light of a century of conflict, thirty years of occupation, five years of negotiations, and the recent election of a right-wing Likud government. The responses were as follows.

Journal of Palestine Studies, Vol. 26 No. 1, Autumn, 1996; (pp. 5-26) DOI: 10.2307/2538028